INSULL GROUPS MOVE UTILITY OFFICES HERE

Entire Second Floor of C., D. & M. Terminal Building Taken Over.

100 PERSONS EMPLOYED

Marion Made Headquarters for Two Ohio Electrical Concerns.

General offices of the Buckeye Light & Power Co. and the Northeastern Public Service Co., Insull utility properties, have been moved to Marion.

Announcement of the transfer was made today by the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co., also owned by the Insull interests.

Employ 100 Persons

Approximately 100 persons are now employed here by the two companies. A number of these requiring technical knowledge for the successful operation of the offices were brought here from the former office in Columbus and Cleveland.

The Buckeye company formerly had offices in Columbus while the Northeastern was moved here from Cleveland. Both companies are distributors of electric power.

Sixteen counties in Ohio are served by the Buckeye company. The Northeastern concern distributes power to nearly a score of counties in Ohio and Indiana. Both companies have numerous subsidiary companies under their control and supervision.

Marion Has Advantages

Marion was selected for the joint offices of the two utility groups after a survey showed the city offered many advantages from an operating standpoint. The central location and the close proximity to the territory covered by the companies were the leading factors in the offices being located here.

The entire second floor of the C., D. & M. terminal station on west Center street has been taken over for office space.

The Insull utility interests last year took over the C., D. & M. Electric Co.

WORLD FLIERS AWAIT CHANGE IN WEATHER

Herndon and Pangborn Still Aim at Record, News Report Says.

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Aug. 4—In the face of unfavorable weather reports, Hugh Herndon, Jr., and Clyde Pangborn, American aviators, had not been able tonight to set a definite time to take-off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, for Nome, Alaska, in continuation of their attempt to beat the record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in flying around the world.

The fliers slept this forenoon in the Russian Aviation society's building near the field at Khabarovsk where they landed at 3:50 p. m. (1:50 a. m. Marion time) yesterday from China.

Upon arising they scanned the sky, hopeful of resuming the flight this afternoon, but weather reports were against them and the hour of starting was not definite. Contrary to reports in New York that they had abandoned their flight they awaited only favorable weather reports.

Rengo news agency dispatches said they were eager to be off, for each hour they remained at Khabarovsk lengthened the margin between their time and that of Post and Gatty.

At 9 a. m. today Herndon and Pangborn had lost only 17 hours, 10 minutes. Their delay was due to a damaged wing, suffered when they landed yesterday.

While Gatty and Post, who set a round-the-world record of 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes, flew a much faster plane, Herndon and Pangborn planned to alternate at sleeping and piloting their ship, thereby eliminating the necessity of stopping for rest. Post alone piloted the "Winnie Mae."

He was brought to his home Sunday in a motor car and stood the trip well, relatives said today. He is able to be up and about his home his nephew and law partner, Alfred Donithen said this morning, adding that he could not state when Mr. Donithen expects to return to his office.

BLAKE'S GUN MISSING

Morrow County Sheriff Releases Four Held for Questioning in Fulton Affair.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, O., Aug. 4. Jeff Blake of Marion and Charles Brown of Fulton, alleged principals in a shooting fray Saturday night at Fulton, will be arraigned some time this afternoon by Prosecutor Fannie Myers. Four other persons who had been lodged in the county jail were released after being questioned by Sheriff Charles Miller.

Blake will be arraigned on a charge of shooting with intent to kill and Brown will face charges of shooting with intent to wound.

The shooting occurred at the Brown home and was witnessed by Clyde Davis, a neighbor, who accompanied Blake to the place. Blake was wounded in the right side by a charge from a shotgun, while two shots said to have been fired from a revolver belonging to Blake were found imbedded in a porch at the Brown home. The revolver which disappeared after the shooting has not been found.

Events leading up to the shooting have not been cleared up to Sheriff Miller's satisfaction. According to stories told by the men, the Davis and Brown families have been having trouble over a broken down fence through which the cows had escaped, and also over a dog. Brown told officers that he had been threatened by Blake and Clyde Davis on previous occasions and had remained at home Saturday night because he feared they would attack him.

Others questioned in the affair and released by the sheriff are Clyde Davis, Miss Fern Davis, said to be a friend of Blake's, and Webb Bower and Chris Davis, who took Blake to the office of a Mt. Gilead physician following the shooting.

Youths "Taking Rap" To Protect Rum Distillers

By International News Service

NEW STRAITSVILLE, O., Aug. 4—Youthful assistants, some of them only a few weeks out of high school, are "taking the rap" for veteran whisky distillers operating in abandoned coal mines in this section, federal prohibition inspectors were convinced today.

Recent raids, which have resulted in the arrest of several boys 20 years old, or younger, led authorities to express that opinion.

Inspectors said they were more than ever certain of that belief following the arrest of James Richardson, 19, who was forced to surrender to raiders at an abandoned mine Sunday. Besides arresting Richardson, officials took a 150-gallon still, 600 gallons of mash and 10 gallons of whisky.

A man who was believed to have been the owner of the still escaped. He fled while the inspectors, both state and federal, were arresting the youth.

Richardson, who graduated from high school with his class only a few weeks ago, was "a tool" of his employer, the inspectors said.

Some of the high school youths prepared for entering the whisky-making business, said to have become one of this section's chief industries, by making a study of chemistry in high school, according to the investigators.

SPEAKERS TELL OF MOVES TO CUT TAX RATES

Marion County Farm Groups Take Another Step in Campaign.

BOND ISSUES DRAW FIRE

Speakers Suggest "Pay-as-You-Go" Policy of Lowering Government Costs.

Organization with a working knowledge of how public funds are spent and a pay-as-you-go policy of governmental operation were advocated by speakers in a public meeting last night at the Chautauqua pavilion as a means of obtaining lower tax rates.

Talks were given by Warren F. Perry, executive secretary of the Ohio Manufacturers' association, E. J. Bath, legislative agent of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, and Earl E. Thomas, Marion county auditor, at one of the series of meetings sponsored by the joint legislative committee of the Marion County Farm Bureau and Pomona Grange. S. B. Stowe acted as chairman. About 100 persons heard the talks.

Want 20 Per Cent Cut

The movement to obtain a 20 per cent reduction in tax expenditures was approved in a resolution submitted at the meeting. The resolution also advocated a careful study of local budgets before their adoption and that committees be appointed to make such study and to meet with the budgeting officials.

Two of the speakers—Perry and Bath—attacked bond issues as an expensive means of raising funds for public improvements. They urged a vote of "No" on such issues and special levies when presented at elections, except in cases where it is proven that they are absolutely necessary.

Perry said the debt limitation and budget laws of Ohio give taxpayers ample opportunity for the control of public expenditures. However, he said, these laws will not automatically accomplish their purpose. The taxpayers themselves must organize and actively participate in all public matters affecting their taxes if they would receive the full measure of benefit from these laws.

Give Public Facts

As an example of what may be accomplished under these laws he outlined the functioning of a special tax committee organized in Youngstown and Mahoning county in which thousands of dollars were saved through the proper study of governmental affairs and the curtailment of spending, the only way to reduce taxes.

He said, "as a foundation for our program of work it was necessary to furnish the public facts and information. The committee made an intensive study of tax conditions of the city, county and schools, including an analysis of the distribution of the taxes collected annually within the city and county.

"A bond holiday for five years was our slogan. We urged strictest economy in conducting public affairs and a pay-as-you-go policy was inaugurated for new school

Lindberghs Travel Over Hazardous Route Today

650-Mile Hop Extends Across Bleak and Barren Area.

GOAL IN FAR NORTH

Hunter Bay 20 Miles from Arctic Circle Next Stop.

By The Associated Press

CHURCHILL, Man., Aug. 4—From the isolated trading post of Baker Lake, Northwest Territory, where it was determined today that the Lindberghs arrived yesterday, they fly today over the bleakest country they have yet encountered on their vacation trip to the orient.

When the wall of static which had cut them off from the world since shortly after they left here yesterday was finally broken to permit news of their arrival at Baker Lake at 5 p. m. yesterday to come through, it was learned they planned taking off for Hunter Bay, 650 miles to the west, before noon.

Near Arctic Circle

The course from Baker Lake to Hunter Bay, which is just 20 miles from the Arctic circle, lies over a lake dotted area far less hospitable than any the Lindberghs have traversed as yet. It will take them over the bleak "height of land," a ridge stretching across their path about 200 miles west of Baker Lake.

At the present season, however, the dangers of crossing the height of land are minimized. The whining gales sweeping across the barrens in winter, which have set back ski-fitted planes in attempts to pierce through to the Arctic shore, will not have to be encountered. Reports from the territories indicate admirable weather prevails.

From Hunter Bay, Col. Lindbergh plans a short 275-mile flight over Lake Step to Fort Norman on the Mackenzie river, leaving only a 350-mile down-river flight before Aklavik, on the Mackenzie river delta at the arctic shore is reached. Once the Lindberghs make Hunter bay, it is possible they may decide to make the two hops to Aklavik—a total of 625 miles, in a single day.

Favored Over Other Route

This route was chosen in preference to a shorter line along the northern rim of Canada, where fog over the uninhabited wilderness increased the hazard of the flight although the distance of 1,100 miles could be negotiated in one day under favorable flying conditions.

Northern fliers pointed out the dangers of the northern route to Colonel Lindbergh and explained the difficulty of finding them if they were forced down in the wilderness and were unable to take off again.

POLICE SEARCH FOR MAN SHOT IN FOOT

Farmer Fires at Trespasser in Corn Field; Victim Escapes.

Police today were checking physicians offices and local hospitals in an effort to find some trace of an unknown man who was shot in the foot while stealing corn from a field belonging to Howard Rowe on west Bennett street, late yesterday afternoon.

Rowe told police who were investigating the shooting yesterday that thieves have kept the field practically stripped of corn as it becomes of edible size. Late yesterday afternoon when he saw a party of men enter the field he determined to take steps to discourage the practice and seizing his shotgun started for the field.

As he approached the field armed with the gun Rowe said, the thieves fled. Not wishing to seriously injure any of the men, Rowe said he fired low the shot striking one of the men in the foot. Although wounded the man continued running and escaped when he was helped into an automobile by his companions. No trace of the wounded man had been found by the police yet today.

ON LINDBERGH FLIGHT ROUTE

A scene at Baker Lake in Northern Canada where Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived yesterday en route to the far east on their vacation flight. LAWRENCE IN COURT ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Arrest of Husband Is New Chapter in Controversy Over Possession of House.

Another chapter in the effort of Harry L. Lawrence to regain possession of his former home on south Prospect street, was written in municipal court this morning when he was arraigned before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin on an assault and battery charge filed against him by his wife, Lillian Lawrence, following his alleged attempt to forcibly obtain possession of the house Sunday morning. He was represented by Attorney Homer Johnson, who asked that the case be continued until Thursday at 9 a. m.

Two Attempts Fail

Lawrence's arrest followed an attempt made by him and Attorney C. A. Arter to gain possession of the house Sunday morning after having failed on two occasions to obtain possession by the process of law. Going to the house during the absence of Mrs. Lawrence Sunday morning, the two men took possession, according to police, after posting a notice on the door to the effect that Lawrence was now in possession.

Mrs. Lawrence upon her return home was refused admission, police say, and her two small children who had been in bed when the two men took possession, were put out with their mother. The police were appealed to following an unsuccessful attempt by Mrs. Lawrence to force her way in and the matter was settled when the men voluntarily withdrew. That Lawrence struck his wife during the melee was charged by Mrs. Lawrence and on Monday she filed an affidavit charging him with assault and battery. After being ejected from the house Mrs. Lawrence is said by police to have fainted. A physician was called who demanded that Mrs. Lawrence be permitted to enter the house.

Writ Denied

An attempt to regain possession of the house was first made by Lawrence on July 3 when a writ was obtained in municipal court ordering her to vacate, a mistake was made, however, in not waiting the three days prescribed by law between the time of serving the writ and bringing action for their removal, and the case was dismissed by Municipal Judge Martin.

On July 9 a second action to force their removal was filed in municipal court by Attorney C. A. Arter representing Lawrence. This also failed when the writ was denied by Municipal Judge Martin.

In his attempt to gain possession of the house Lawrence charged that following the filing of a divorce petition in common pleas court, the court granted his wife a certain alimony but she was not given the right to occupy the house. The divorce case is now pending in the court of appeals having been refused in common pleas court.

20 OF VICTIMS NEGROES

Authorities at Loss To Explain Mishap; Only One Body Recovered.

By The Associated Press

GEORGETOWN, S. C., Aug. 4—A bus loaded with picnickers returning from a beach outing plunged into an open drawbridge near here late last night and carried approximately 20 Negroes and two white men to their death.

Only one person, a Negro youth, was known to have escaped. He said he broke a window in the bus and jumped to safety as the vehicle hurtled into the 40-foot water of the Sampit river.

Negroes Unidentified

The two white men who drowned were Warren Newton, owner and driver of the bus, and Olin Newton, his son.

The names of the Negroes drowned could not be ascertained early today. They were residents of Georgetown and Andrews who engaged Newton, a farmer, to drive them to the beach for a picnic.

A crew of workmen, after laboring several hours with two wreckers, succeeded about daylight in raising the bus to the surface.

Only one body, that of an unidentified Negro, was recovered when the truck was brought up. The top of the vehicle had been torn off in the lifting operation. It was believed the other victims had been spilled back into the river.

Authorities said they were at loss to explain what caused the driver to run the bus into the river. They said red light danger signals to warn that the draw-bridge had been lifted for the passage of a boat were clearly visible.

TELL OF CAMPAIGNS TO CUT TAX RATES

Marion County Farm Groups Take Another Step in Campaign.

buildings and large improvements as soon as possible.

"Our big work, however, which is our fundamental objective, has been the paramount effort centered upon the making and administration of the budgets which represent the amount of money to be spent by the city, county and schools out of general taxes. The budgets are the most important documents in the tax program as their set-up represents or fixes the amount of our taxes.

"When we started our work the city was in a bankrupt condition, having been compelled to lay off a third of the policemen and firemen, reduce their pay, curtail all service and levy an occupational tax. Service of all kinds has been renewed, wages restored, the occupational tax continued and the public improvement program now under way is the greatest in history."

Wants Group Here

Perry said his aim was to organize such a tax committee in Marion county in which farmers and business men will join in the movement to lower taxes.

Both forecasts a 20 per cent drop in tax returns when the new tax program becomes effective. He outlined his organization's stand before the last general assembly for a higher tax on intangibles, an income tax and a tax on amusements.

It is impossible in Marion county, Bath said, to make a demand of a flat 20 per cent cut in taxes without knowing through an extensive study of conditions the amount which can be eliminated without impeding governmental service.

He warned that shortages in local revenues inevitably will encourage bond issues and special levies. "Every such bond issue and special levy should be opposed if it can be established that they are being submitted to make up deficits due to insufficient revenue under the new tax law, unless of course, they are absolutely essential."

"During the six months or so our Ohio legislature was in session, it knew of the need for relief to our penal and welfare institutions. The Farm Bureau tax program suggested adequate sources of taxation, yet the assembly adjourned without passing legislation to produce the needed revenue.

State Plans Issue

"Now it is contemplated to issue a $7,500,000 bond issue for penal and welfare purposes at the coming November election. There is no money in the state general fund from which to pay interest on these bonds and to retire them. Some means will have to be found by future legislature to do this. The legislature could and should have avoided this bond issue."

He urged every taxpayer to get into the tax system and to know more about the affairs of the local government. He said aroused interest will bring results.

"Approximately 70 per cent of the money spent by Marion county goes to charity and to expenses pertaining to crime." Auditor Thomas said after discussing the new tax laws.

Take Big Share

"It will cost Marion county $80,000 this year for the county home, children's home, blind relief, soldiers' relief, mothers' pension and the care of our wards in the various state institutions. The various departments of the county government connected with law enforcement and the maintenance of criminals in outside institutions will cost the taxpayers $50,000.

"These two items alone will require approximately $130,000 of the total county levy which brings in $189,000. These, like many other expenditures, are fixed charges against the county, created by law and the only way they can be reduced is by the repeal of the laws by which they are created."

In discussing the new tax laws the auditor said it will be impossible to tell what benefits will be until they are put into effect in 1932. It was said that the last general assembly was going to see that the various political sub-divisions of the state would have less revenue on which to operate, and yet every tax measure enacted, Thamos said, will be a great deal more costly to the taxpayer than the ones repealed. He said this was brought about from the duplication and the addition of more work by virtue of the new laws.

SUES CITY TO STOP STREET PAYMENTS

Landowner Brings Action; Says Assessments More Than Lot Value.

The city of Marion and the county auditor and treasurer were named defendants in a suit filed in common pleas court today by Charles E. Clutter.

Clutter asked that the city be restrained from collecting street assessments on his property located on east Church street. He charges that the property has a tax value of $450 and was assessed $534.40 for the paving of Church street. He says that all assessments over one-third of the taxable value of the property are contrary to law.

His petition claims that he has paid $267.20 on the assessments. In addition to asking the court to restrain the city from collecting the taxes, he also asks a judgment for the money paid over the amount required by law. The plaintiff is represented by Attorney C. H. Conley.

SEEK AGREEMENT WITH RAIL HEADS

Labor Groups Hit Obstacle in Effort To Devise Aid for Unemployed.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4—Executives of railroad labor organizations today sought the way out from an impasse with the railroad owners in the efforts of the labor groups to solve the problem of caring for 350,000 unemployed railroad workers.

The impasse was discovered yesterday as a refusal by the association of railway executives to confer with the labor organizations on unemployment and related problems. The labor group in turn refused a counter-proposal to deal with the individual carriers separately.

David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said the labor executives will decide within a week or two what their next step will be.

The refusal of the railway executives to join in a general conference was explained from Washington by Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the Association of Railway Executives, with a statement that the articles of the association forbid it to consider labor problems; that they should be handled directly with the individual carriers.

ANOTHER VICTIM

New York Police Face New Problem In War With Gangs

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 — Police, already engaged in an intensive campaign against gangsters, had another killing to solve today, the fourth within a week.

In Manhattan and the Bronx, three newly impanneled grand juries went into the crime situation under warning by the presiding judges, to fully cooperate with police in dealing with gangsters.

The latest victim since five-year-old Michael Vengalli was mowed down by shotgun slugs in Harlem, was Angelo Marino, described as a petty racketeer. Marino's strangled form was found yesterday in a Long Island city garage, wrapped in blankets.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said he expected several of the cases to be solved within the next two or three days.

Woman, 105, Gives Views on Depression

By The Associated Press

LANSDALE, Pa., Aug. 4—Miss Mary Knapp of Montgomery Square near here, observed her one hundred and fifth birthday today quietly at her home. For the last 96 years she has been a resident of the village.

She believes the present economic depression was caused by "too much fast living, spending too much money and time on things we don't need forgetting the simple life that the Bible advocates. It is God's method of punishment," she said.

She plans to go on a picnic next week.

Stickier Than Mud

HALF a century ago, it might not have been the unusual thing for a vehicle to get stuck on Marion's streets. But today, with bricks, macadam, asphalt and what have you, covering the city streets, there is apparently little excuse for geting "stuck."

Yet County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens will tell you that it is still possible to get stuck, right uptown too.

When a county road maintainer, in tow behind a tractor, started down State street during the hottest of the hot days, the wheels adhered to the gummy tar coating on the bricks, with the result that the machinery became literally stuck.

When the wheels of the maintainer were oiled, eliminating the tendency toward adhesion, the difficulty was overcome.

"JOSEPH'S coat of many colors" is a coat of paint on a Marion Ford. From the exotic to the pastel, the shades vary. The tudor Model T, with a once-was trunk rack has been parked on Court street and on Center street for the last several days, defying all traditions of auto painting.

One door is gray, the other is maroon. The framework around the top and windows is baby blue; the radiator is a brighter maroon and a Kelly green; the cowl is pale ivory and the rear is a deeper ivory shading into yellow.

Vacation?

AUGUST . . . two-thirds of the summer gone . . . what has been done that was planned . . . the visit to Aunt Kate and Uncle John . . . or to grandmother's? With the coming of June, many resolutions are made yearly to catch up on visits to relatives and friends that have been dragging behind. Some Marionites have probably done their bit toward this good work, but it is safe to assume that an equal number will again make the same vows next spring, with the same result.

Vacations, too, often work the same way. That long planned trip to the Yellowstone, Niagara Falls, or New York . . . was it taken this year? Perhaps the old bus refused to make the grind, or the weather was too hot.

Often those fortunate enough to be able to carry through their plans for the summer are ready to take another vacation upon their return, so strenuous are some of the vacations. Many that are not practically exhausted when it is all over, are sunburned to the nth degree, or bothered with some other result of "summer pleasure."

After all is said and done, the "old front porch," the golf course, swiming pool, theaters and other amusements are good enough for many vacationists.

"TOASTING" expels SHEEP-DIP BASE naturally

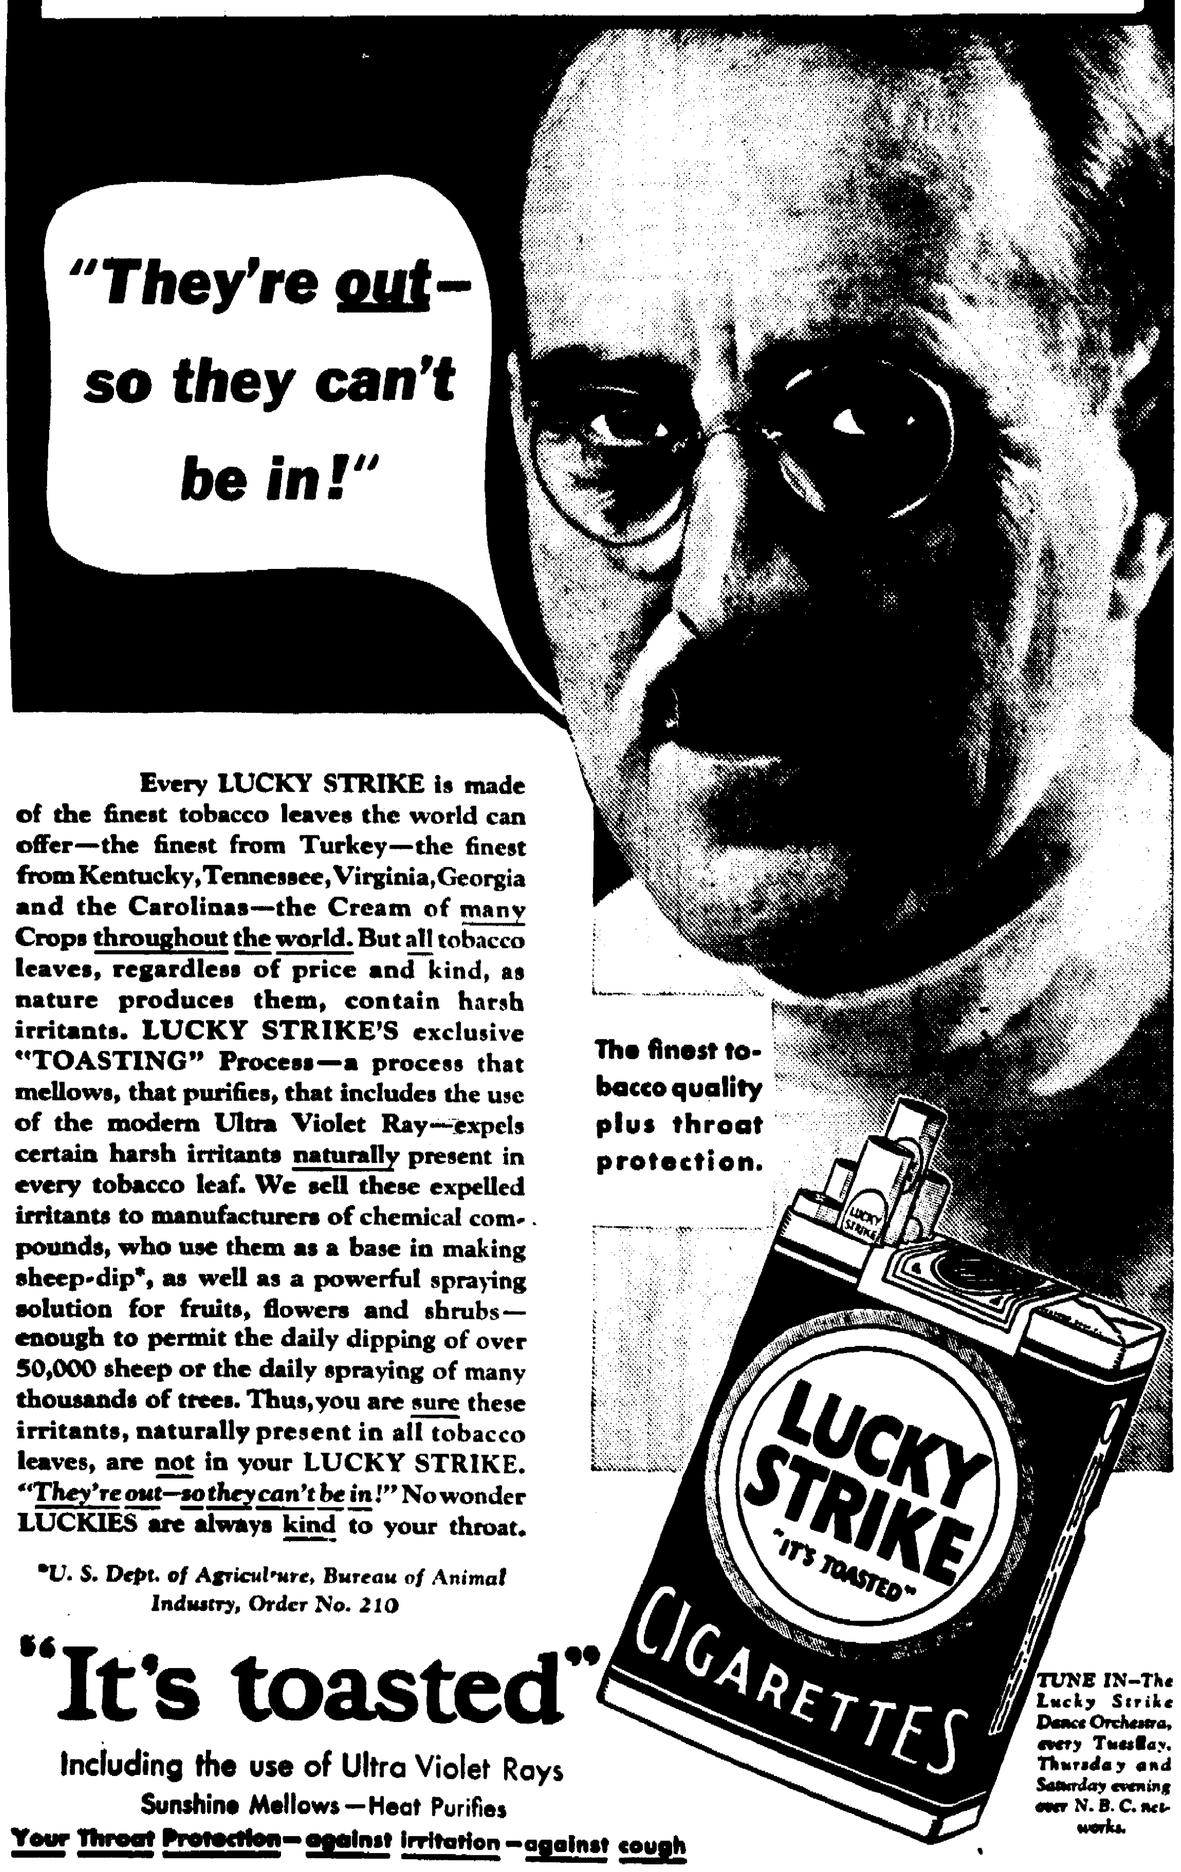
(Black, biting, harsh irritant chemicals)

present in every tobacco leaf



Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for fruits, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

WARNS AGAINST USE OF CUT-OUTS

Acting Chief Says Drivers of Noisy Cars Will Be Prosecuted.

Those who driv with their cutouts open or with only one head light, are letting themselves in for much trouble if they do not mend their ways

Acting Police Chief Ira Shrock yesterday made a formal declaration of war on this type of violator. "These young fellows who drive with their cut outs open had better mend their ways, the acting chief declared "They will be picked up and excuses will not go If there is anything wrong with the mufflers on their cars, they had better get them fixed."

Those who drive with only one headlight will also be considered an enemy in this war, the actins chief said. "As with the mufflers, if there is anything wrong with the lights or the wiring the motorist will save himself a lot of trouble if he will make the necessary repairs."

Galion To Honor Two Oldest Citizens at Three-Day Centennial Celebration

Mrs. Martha R. Crim, 91, and Dr. Samuel Wagner, 94, Recall Early Days.

Special to The Star

GALION, Aug 5 Guests of honor at the Galion centennial celebration Aug 26, 27 and 28 will be the city's two oldest citizens Mrs. Martha R Crim, 91 and Dr. Samuel Wagner, 94, both residing on Harding Way West. Mrs. Crim and Dr Wagner have been close friends for more than 60 years and neighbors for more than half a century.

Both occupy inviting looking, old-fashioned brick houses set in magnificent lawns and surrounded by flowers and shrubbery

Oldest Clubwoman

Mrs Crim is the oldest active member of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs and is a charter member of the city's oldest club, the Current News club, which was organized in 1892 and of the youngest club, the Galion Garden club She was one of the organizers of the Galion public library and to her is given the credit for the materialization of the project She served as a member of the board for a number of years and now is a member emeritus Mrs Crim also was active in the organization of the Good Samaritan hospital and through her efforts and those of the late Mrs H H Hartmann brought about the founding and development of the city's hospital Following the death of Mr Crim about 30 years ago Mrs Crim was named first vice president of the First National bank in Galion, holding the office for a period of six years She continues as an active member of the board of directors and attends the meetings regularly. She is a member of the Methodist church in Galion

"I insist the world is growing better and I truly believe it is," is Mrs Crim's almost instantaneous reply to a question as to her views on "this modern age"

Dr. Wagner Born In 1837

Equally interesting is the life of Dr Wagner who has resided in Galion since August, 1865 Visitors to the Wagner home these days finds a very busy man caring for his garden which it is easily guessed, is his hobby One of his many successes is the grafting and budding of fruit trees "Daily exercise is what has lengthened my life," Dr Wagner will tell anyone asking him the secret of his long years and good health He exercises twice daily and spends a great deal of time out of doors

One of the outstanding events in the life of Dr Wagner was hearing President Lincoln deliver his Gettysburg address in Washington, D C Dr Wagner is a staunch Republican in national politics, although not deeply interested in party issues He is a charter member of the Galion Chapter of Royal Arch Masons and is an active member of Grace Episcopal church

Retires at 70

He was born Nov 27 1837, in Woodsboro, Md., where he received his early education He later graduated from the Baltimore Dental college at Baltimore He opened his dental office in Galion in a building where the present Snyder block is located He remained in this location for three years and when the Sponhauer block was completed on the public square, (now the Maccabee temple) he moved into it Here he maintained an office for 43 years, retiring at the age of 70 years

Dr. Wagner's keen sense of humor is one of the many reasons for his host of friends and the visitor relishes the twinkle in his eye when his reception of a handsome cane presented him by his grandson, Frederick Riehl on his return from China a few years ago, is related "When I am an old man I will carry it." The cane has never been used

Daily Proverb—"When either side grows warm with argument the wiser man gives over first."

Sixteen accidental deaths in Ohio over the week-end. The day of rest has become a day of tragedy.

Great Britain has three taxless islands. Strange as it may seem none of them has been named "Heaven."

"Leaps from Thirty Fifth Floor, Hits Pavement and Dies." Headline over a Chicago story. That headliner didn't propose to leave anything to assumption.

One just naturally has to feel sorry for the agriculturists of the Northwest. The department of agriculture is going to help them fight the grasshoppers, and it may be recalled what happened to the Florida orange groves when the government agents got busy down there.

We note that Cheboygan, Michigan, has selected a queen for its water carnival, and the pictures run of her show that she is prepared to get wet.

Solomon K. Dinizulu, paramount chief of the Zulus in Africa, has taken his 200th wife. But then, the economic side of marriage is not vital in Zululand. What foodstuffs can not be picked off the trees down there roams around loose, and the matter of raiment is negligible.

The International Congress of Public Hygiene, assembled in Paris, favors the prohibition of horns and whistles as gifts to children. Can't the congress see its way clear to the inclusion of drums?

Buses have supplanted the twenty-three-mile rail line built by the Delaware & Hudson railroad in 1828 between Carbondale and Honesdale, Pennsylvania, the first line operated in the United States. When it comes to supplanting railroad service, the buses aren't playing any favorites. Old roads and new look alike to them.

Preliminary figures show that the production of cigarets during the year ended June 30 fell off 303,161,300 from the record of the preceding twelve months to 119,632,271,900, while the number of cigars decreased 641,818,200 from the preceding year's total to 5,686,647,600. The fall in cigar consumption has been steady, but about the only explanation of the decreased cigaret production is that the girls must be rolling their own.

Police Answers.

A picture circulated widely shows a New York City police lieutenant leaning out an automobile window and leveling a repeating shotgun at an imaginary human target. This is to be New York's answer to threats of gangsters—the answer prompted by the slaying of a child and the wounding of four others who happened to stand between a carload of assassins and their intended victim a few days ago.

The picture is not very convincing. If this is New York's answer, if this is any city's answer, to gangland's threats, it does not inspire confidence. Why do the police wait until some one has been killed to give their answer? They are paid to protect, not to revenge.

Last week, the Wickersham commission turned over a severe report on police systems to President Hoover. The first paragraph read:

"The general failure of police to detect and arrest criminals guilty of the many murders, spectacular bank, payroll and other hold-ups, and sensational robberies with guns, frequently resulting in the death of the robbed victims, has caused a loss of public confidence in the police of our country."

This is not New York, Chicago Philadelphia or Los Angeles, but every city in the United States with a few exceptions. While there are exceptions, the commission has stated the rule as the American people have formulated it. The police are failing to do the work expected of them. Every time it becomes necessary for a police chief, mayor or other empowered official to order a drive on crime a new admission of failure is made.

As a general rule, police know who the criminals under their jurisdiction are. It requires only a word from the chief to clutter the jail with them. But the word doesn't come often. It takes a murder or an outbreak of crime to inspire it. The Wickersham commission blames politics, low police standards and inadequate physical equipment for this breakdown in social protection.

How much better it would have been, everything considered, had that New York police lieutenant never posed for a picture of himself ready to shoot to kill! There's too much confession of posturing, desperation and in efficiency in his unwitting bluster.

No Such Thing as "Shellshock."

If we are to credit the seemingly unanimous conclusion of the International Congress of Military Medicine and Pharmacy, which recently concluded its sessions in The Hague, there is no such thing as "shellshock." Yet the belief that there was such a thing was responsible for many casualties during the World war.

The physicians in attendance at the gathering, in which representatives of all the allied powers and most of the associated powers were present, decided that there is "no specific mental or nervous condition directly attributable to the effects of artillery fire," and they indorsed the fight led by the American army and reserve corps doctors present against further use of the term, which for a long time has not been in good repute among psychiatrists.

The congress was told by Colonel W. I. Lorenz, professor of psychiatry at the University of Wisconsin, who saw service in the World war, that the term itself was largely responsible for some of the cases of neurosis which was classified as "shellshock." It may prove interesting to quote Colonel Lorenz. He said:

"The term carried with it the inference of having been under fire, of having faced danger and fulfilled a military duty. The serious character of modern artillery fire was common knowledge and was broadcast through the land by sometimes exaggerated statements in the press. This created an expectancy and helped formulate the generally held belief that mere proximity to an exploding shell would damage and wound a soldier in some manner. 'Shellshock' was promptly accepted as a proper casualty of war and it served as an honorable and acceptable wound. The euphony of the term was attractive. The subsequent effort to offset the psychology created by the term came too late to be effective. Had this been anticipated it is very probable that a large number of casualties from this cause would have been prevented."

But, as might be guessed, this was not the only bad psychology created during the war. Far from it. In the opinion of the American delegates to the congress, the training of our soldiers was very bad from a psychological standpoint. They pointed out that the danger of gas was overemphasized and our soldiers as a result were overimpressed with the effectiveness of gas. Horrors were deliberately created which are now known to have been entirely unjustified, with the result that troops were less fit mentally to meet the conditions of warfare.

In this line it may be said that one of the statements made before the congress which evoked its approval was that fifty per cent. of the psycho-neuroses which developed at or near the front might be termed 'gas hysteria.' "At the sounding of a gas alarm," it was stated, "fearful anxiety would develop acutely. If one now adds to this situation a mind in which the belief has been planted by training that one could be gassed seriously and yet not be immediately aware of such injury, and the final factor that injury would serve as an honorable and acceptable escape from this intolerable situation, one has a typical state of mind for the development of psycho-neurosis."

And while on the subject of war psychology, warning was uttered against the fantastic stories about the "death ray" which appear from time to time. The warning was that as the result of these stories a state of mind is being prepared at present which will result in many cases of psycho-neurosis should this country become involved in another war. In other words, fantastic tales about a mysterious death ray which have no foundation in fact; stories about something unknown to man; will result in casualties in any war of the future in which we may engage.

It's an awful thought that the training given our soldiers, though well intended, led to the undoing of thousands of them.

Lieutenant Henry C. Kellers, of the navy medical service, has brought back to this country a sample of wood grown on Nafou island, 300 miles south of Samoa, which sinks instantly when dropped into a pool of water. Even at that, it hasn't so much on some of the proposed official timber occasionally launched upon the muddy pool of politics.

Twenty-nine new state laws went into effect in Ohio Monday, eleven more will go into effect Wednesday and seven more next Monday, forty-seven in all, and it is seriously to be questioned if there are forty-seven citizens of the state who, off hand can name even a fair proportion of them.

The Bait and the Bite.

The latest "Help Germany" idea is to sell it all the surplus American wheat and cotton it wants on long term credit. "Take it along and send a check when you get ready" is the familiar slogan of this type of business.

There has been no development in the official campaign to aid Berlin that has been more coolly received than this one. The millions whose individual reactions go to make up the public attitude find it difficult to see why it would help Germany to increase its indebtedness to the United States on a vague promise to pay some time or perhaps never. Or if they happen to be more interested in helping the United States than Germany, they find it hard to see wisdom in selling wheat and cotton purchased with public money to a buyer whose credit is tottering.

Germany, itself, shows little enthusiasm for the proposal, which now exists somewhere in the stage between conversational conjecture and official utterance. As a trial balloon, it has not caused much excitement. Germany could use but little wheat at the present time, it needs cotton, but there is a question as to whether it would buy from the United States. An official reply is due this week. It is not expected to be strongly favorable to America unloading its wheat and cotton surpluses in Germany "to aid the economic situation."

It seems probable the people have reached low ebb on enthusiasm for national kindness of the enlightened selfishness variety. They hailed the moratorium with cheers but there's something about telling Germany to "take it along and pay when you get ready" that blights enthusiasm.

PUBLIC ENEMY.

From the face of gang warfare a mask has been torn by the hands of five little children innocent victims of the rifles and automatics of "racketeers."

It is a mask that has fooled the public into the belief that gangsters battle only among themselves. Honest citizens were little concerned. Let the fratricidal strife continue . . . let the gunmen exterminate each other.

How now can public indifference answer the parents of the five children who were shot down at play on the streets of New York when gangster bullets missed their intended victim?

How many instances must be added to the harrowing record of organized crime to arouse public recognition to the fact that it can be stopped?

The situation is not new. It is not peculiar to the present day. It was much the same when the frontier was moving westward. There was organized banditry then. It was stopped. It can be stopped now.

The frontier tactics arose from the necessity of the hour. The people became aroused. They banded together and handled things in their own way. The results were not pleasant for the criminals. Such methods are not needed today. There is machinery of law and justice. The motive power, however, is the same. It is an aroused citizenry.

The police are not helpless. How does New York keep its financial district, below the "deadline" of Manhattan, virtually clear of criminals? How did Detroit momentarily smash its gangs under the sudden stimulus of criminal excess? Why do crooks avoid Cleveland, Ohio?

The answer is one of moral stamina. It springs from public demand. The posses of the old West rode upon the sanction of a citizenry which cried stirringly for justice. This is the element which is lacking in the situation today. Public indifference is the greatest public enemy.—Christian Science Monitor.

A BUILDING UP TO DATE.

Chicago has in one of its new buildings what is described as a noiseless terminal. The building is that which the American Railway express has erected by the tracks of the Chicago & Northwestern railway. In the description of the structure printed in the Express Messenger, it is said: "Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the terminal, beside the general convenience of its whole arrangement, is that it is practically noiseless. All the 400 platform trailers are rubber tired as are the tractors which draw them. Even the cars are handled by a gas electric locomotive, which makes but little fuss in carrying on its work."

"But not so fast!" Perhaps in future years it will not be the means of maintaining quiet that is regarded as the outstanding characteristic of this terminal. In days when the gunman is remembered as a part of an imperfect civilization, and the gangs are classed with the hired killers of medieval times, it may be that "the most remarkable feature" of the terminal in Chicago will be remembered as the "arsenal which guards the outer entrance on one side and the cashier's pens and employes on the other." The noiseless terminal has its machine gun nest that on occasion may shatter the silence. It appears that in this concrete booth a guard stands on duty constantly with arms and ammunition and a row of "long slitted windows" through which he may fire if occasion arises.

What indeed could be more typical of twentieth century civilization in these United States than a building constructed to aid both the war on noise and the war on the gangster? Truly here is a structure properly to be described as up to date.—Boston Transcript.

An Ideal Disinfectant.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

What is a good disinfectant? This is a question I am frequently asked. It is always asked in the home where there has been sickness. It is a common question, indeed, during epidemics of mumps, measles, chicken pox and other infectious diseases.

The public is always willing to buy expensive disinfectants. Yet one of the best agents for combatting disease and dirt is soap and water. This simple fact is overlooked. It appears to be too simple a thing.

In dealing with an infected person, disinfectants are of no value. No trust must be placed in them under these circumstances. The victim of an infectious or contagious disease should be isolated. That is the only safe procedure.

Isolation means that the sick person is placed in a room where he will have no direct contact with the well members of the family. Then he can not spread the disease.

Those who would have cleanliness and freedom from disease in their homes should remember the virtues of soap and water. In addition, it is important that there be plenty of fresh air and sunshine. Cleanliness and sunshine combat all disease and usually it is not necessary to resort to strong disinfectants.

The chief value that many strong disinfectants have is the cleansing odor of the chemicals. They may be of some value when used in lavatories and wash basins.

Hands may be rid of all bacteria by thorough scrubbing with soap and water. It is interesting to note that in most hospitals surgeons, prior to operating, use only soap and water to scrub their hands. Following this preparation, in these modern days, sterile rubber gloves are worn, of course.

There is a tendency to do away with corrosive and strong disinfectants. It has been proved that they are little superior to ample soap and water. In fact, in some instances they are inferior because of their irritating properties.

The Thermionic Valve.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The invention of the [illegible] valve effected nothing short of a revolution both in the transmitting and receiving apparatus used in wireless telephony. Its [illegible] and importance have been pointed out by Prof. Fleming Hawks in the "Book of Electrical Wonders."

The pioneer inventor in this field was Sir Ambrose Fleming who in 1904 discovered that, with some slight alterations, an electric lamp could be made to act as a detector and rectifier of electrical oscillations. This device was widely used as a receiver in long distance wireless telegraphy on account of its sensitiveness.

In the early days of the work in the incandescent lamp, Edison noticed that after continual use the inside of the bulb became blackened as if covered with a fine deposit. Edison discovered a peculiar action which came to be known as the Edison effect. He fixed inside the bulb a small metal plate, but insulated from it. When this plate was connected to the positive terminal of a battery, an electrical current passed along the wire from the plate, but the current would not leap the gap when the negative terminal was connected to the plate. In his absorption with the invention of the electric bulb, Edison set aside this problem for investigation at some future time.

With our present knowledge of electrons and protons, the explanation of the Edison effect is simple. When the filament was heated a stream of electrons flew off and attached themselves to the positively charged plate, and continuing their course to the positive terminal of the battery caused the galvanometer when they passed through it to register. A similar explanation applies when the plate was negatively charged since the negative electrons in the plate repelled the negative electrons in the filament.

It was this principle of the Edison effect which Sir Ambrose Fleming used in 1904 in his invention of the Fleming oscillation valve. Instead of using a rectangular plate as Edison had done, Sir Ambrose used a cylindrical plate surrounding the filament, which greatly increased the efficiency of the valve.

Three years later, Lee de Forest hit upon an ingenious idea which has proved transforming, literally, in perfecting wireless telephony. He inserted a perforated metal plate between the filament and the unperforated plate. This perforated plate is known as the grid, and the valve in the modern form, which includes the grid, is known as the three-electrode valve.

To illustrate, the filament is bombarding the plate with electrons. The grid, acting as a spasmodic shield between machine gun and target, resembles a Venetian blind that has its slats alternately opened and closed, by the presence or absence of an impulse from the aerial. When the positive half of the aerial current reaches the grid, the slats are opened, and the negative electrons are allowed free access to the target, but the reverse phenomenon takes place when the negative half of the impulse reaches the grid, stopping the flow of electrons to the plate. De Forest's invention accomplished the important purpose of magnifying or amplifying these signals.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Home Life in Samoa.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Families have few quarrels in the Eden-like land of Samoa. If there is any little dispute or argument to be settled, the practice for centuries has been to call the chief and talking-chief of the tribe and have the parties place the grievances before them.

Generally a few words from these respected men suffice to restore tranquility and the meeting is concluded by all drinking ava, the native beverage, as the chief pronounces a toast.

Each formal meal is begun by the drinking of this ava. The chief guest is handed the first cup by a son of the talking high chief, while another talking-chief tells the assemblage of the great deeds of the visitors village or family.

The guest spills a few drops of ava on the floor and then drinks, after which a youthful chieftain passes around the cup to each man, the deeds of whose family and tribe are sung. Mentioning names is considered a gross insult.

While this is going on, the women are sitting in another circle and taking part in a similar rite, but without ava. There is little overeating and seldom too much drinking.

The meal finished and the place cleared, the dancers and singers take possession. There are voices of all pitches and songs of every description. Music is furnished by a falamoe, a floor mat used as a drum and all keep time by clapping hands.

This continues for hours and is only interrupted for the dancing and participation in minor sports. Although the spirits of the celebrants run high during these parties, their native geniality and courtesy for their elders and fellow tribesmen prevent any disorder or discord.

It is feared that the invasion of jazz and American movies will soon make these delightful and characteristic feasts only memories in a very few years. Already many of the younger people have exhibited marked preference for our "canned" music, but the older folks still stand by their tribal customs, and today the issue of "jazz" versus the old-fashioned Samoan feasts hangs between these two factions.

The following are the answers of three citizens to the question, "What Will Better Marion?—the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. From day to day, answers of various citizens to the same question will be given publicity on this page.

I believe that Marion has all the essential materials in the way of men capable of leadership, and I feel all that is required for the betterment of our city is to bring about close cooperation and coordination of the various interests and organizations in a common cause. At Monte Carlo.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Monte Carlo, Aug. 4.—This miniature paradise continues a cesspool of European morals. Even the pungent perfume of its beautiful flowers is tainted with the cloying scent of blood, guilt and diabolical deceit. The glow of the putrid phosphorescence of human dregs.

It is ever amazing that perhaps the fairest spot in all Europe—for to the eye Monte Carlo is enticingly lovely—should cradle the worst thieves, panderers, harlots, rogues and moneylenders to be found on the face of the globe. I am always sorry I came an hour after arriving.

The entire principality, the prince, the bishop, the canons, the soldiery, the policehotel-keepers, cab drivers, waiters and boatmen are banded together in a colossal propagandage to plunder the innocent visitor. A half dozen trains roar in daily to pour out their victims.

It is not decorative fiction that suicides are frequent. During the season there are several, weekly, but such messy scandal never reaches the outside world. Monte Carlo sees to that. After a heavy loser has shot, poisoned or hanged himself his body is whisked away until interest dies down.

At the end of the season—this is officially a record—suicide victims are packed in cases, weighted and sunk far out at sea between Monte and Corsica. In 1898 alone sixty-nine bodies were removed at night from secret crevices, towed out and dumped into deep waters.

Monte Carlo's biggest lure is the fable the bank was once broken. This fancy was cabled to all the world and is still believed. Yet it was a press agent trick. The bank has never been broken nor can it ever be broken. Mathematically that would be impossible.

This is, of course, the off season and things are not at the usual pitch. The Casino is open, but mostly for low stakes. Today, for instance the crowds were chiefly men in flannels and the ladies in costumes pour le sport. I noticed two croupiers yawning.

Despite the off season, the Casino is not shorn of its witch-like old ladies—the famed "Miss Harriets" who seem to keep alive solely through the excitement of gambling. Most of them are past seventy, one is reputed in her ninety second year, and every day they are on the fringe of the tables, like vultures coldly eyeing carrion. They are the inveterate students of the "system" and each believes some day she will make a grand killing. Not one ever has. In the end they are shipped to some far away alms house.

Monte Carlo fears, and I wanted to ring the welkin with a cliff echoing "goody, goody"—the coming season. The men and women who frequent its green tables begin to make their reservations at the Hotel de Paris in July. So far reservations at all inns are off eighty per cent., which will bring its tourists down to the lowest number in history. The biggest year it ever had was the boom season of 1929.

I have seen the wicked Prince of Monaco's oceanic exhibit. Fish are his diversion—suckers especially which is a cipher in feeble wheezes. I have also watched them shoot clay pigeons and sat along the Promenade des Anglais at the 11 o'clock parade. So this afternoon I lolled on the green of a Mediterranean hill and watched sail boats skimming by while Billy was all jittery over the swooping and spiraling gulls, chasing them like a cane clown.

Such forthright novelists as E. Phillips Oppenheim and the late Arnold Bennett glorify Monte Carlo as the gayest playground in the world. Yet so far it has been my dullest day in Europe and for no reason at all I am strangely depressed, but I am looking forward to dinner al fresco and a night view of the Corniche road.

The Grande Corniche, literally the cornice above the Riviera, is a highway of short turns, birdlike swoops and fascinatingly dizzy loops. Seen from the calm water side below the dark gliding motor headlights, like fire-flies, trace in a miracle of brightness its irregular course. To me there is something impish about it all. Romance flying through the night on wings. And glamorous twaddle like that.

O yes another thing this morning I lost 275 francs of $11 in five minutes trying to beat one of their absolutely absurd games. They should put a stop to such carryings on.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Governor Harris' Salary.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

In a recent story by this writer, on governors' salaries in Ohio, an injustice was done to the late Governor Andrew L. Harris. It was stated that he was the first governor to draw pay at the new rate of $10,000 a year. Colonel Worthington Kautzman, who was his adjutant general, claimed that he well remembered that Governor Harris drew pay at the old rate of but $8,000 a year.

The records of the auditor of state were consulted, through the courtesy of Auditor of State Tracy, and it was found that Colonel Kautzman was correct. During the two and a half years that General Harris held the executive office he was never paid more than $8,000 a year. Some one had raised the question informally as to whether the new governor would be entitled to compensation at the new rate, but it was never pressed to a decision for the reason that the governor said that while possible he would be held to have the right to compensation at the higher rate under the law, he felt that he was morally no more entitled to it than Governor Pattison, having been elected lieutenant governor at the same time Mr. Pattison was elected governor, and he would take no more. That settled it. There was no question of law to be decided.

In this day when public officials generally are grasping in their efforts to get all the pay they can, it is refreshing to have our attention called to the rugged old-fashioned honesty of "Uncle Andy" Harris, to whom the mere prompting of the moral law that he was not entitled to the extra $2,000 a year was sufficient to prevent him from taking it. He was long in the public service in various fields, and at his death it developed that he was probably the wealthiest citizen of Preble county. But there was not a cent in it, we may be sure, that he did not earn and to which he was not legally entitled.

Chic Star Patterns

Practical and Simple

Flattering Bib Collar Frock.

Pattern 2175

The bib collar is shown in many types on the becoming softly designed frocks for summer afternoons, and this is a particularly charming example. The collar dips to a point in the back, and in the front forms a deeper point that is held down by the sash at the waistline passing through a slot. The flaring skirt is joined to the top in a pointed line accenting the lines of the collar. Embroidered bastiste would make this a lovely flattering afternoon frock, or georgette, chiffon, or printed crepe could be used.

Obtainable only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material and 2½ yards of ruffling. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

Arthur Brisbane's Today

Sultans of Turkey would have said had you told them that in their great city of Istanbul men that had flown the Atlantic ocean and the European continent would land to drink to the health of "Kemal Pasha, president of Turkey." That would be too much for any Sulton.

One of the fibers at the Turkish banquet said that he expected Constantinople to be a great aviation center some day.

Charles Fourier, the French philosopher, expected Constantinople to become the capital of the entire world, because of its central position.

But now flying machines make all spots on earth accessible. The world's capital will be wherever the world's brains are and the world's money.

THE NAVY ANNOUNCES that it is now building a plane that will be "as speedy as the British Interceptor."

Why a plane "as fast?" Why not faster?

In the days of Paul Jones we sometimes had ships on the sea faster than the British had. Why not have them faster in the air?

However, as David Rendt, the Tammany boss of Staten Island, remarked, "In the old days we had wooden ships and iron men. Now we have iron ships and wooden men."

COMMUNISTS BLAMED IN CHICAGO RACE RIOT

Three Negroes Slain In Disorder Following Eviction of Colored Family.

that furniture back" and "we want something to eat" were heard and some of the crowd started to put the furniture back.

A patrol wagon, manned by Policeman Fred Graham, a Negro, Margin Ernst and John McFadden, arrived, but the trio was quickly surrounded by the rioters, many of whom were armed with knives, clubs and pistols. Ernst suffered a skull fracture. His companions were cut. When the reserves, including Sergeant Henry Lyons, came to their aid, a Negro pulled Lyons' pistol from his holster and threatened to shoot. As he did so Policeman William Jordan fired and the Negro fell dead. A few minutes later Lyons, who had recovered his pistol, paid his debt to Jordan by killing a Negro who was firing at Jordan from a nearby doorway.

The manner of the third man's death could not be learned. They were not identified.

Mob Attacks Police

While the fight was at its height a group of policemen, led by Sergeant James McMahon, became separated from the main body of the reinforcements, and were forced to take refuge in a small store in the same block. They were attacked by at least a hundred men, some of whom broke the store windows with bricks. Shots were also fired at the policemen, but they were able to defend themselves without injury until help arrived.

Mayor Cermak, at Little Current, Ont., when told of the disorder, ordered that no more families be evicted without notification being given to him and to an organized charity. He said he would establish a special fund to aid evicted families.

HIKING PREACHER

EDWIN A FOLEY

EVANGELIST HERE FOR SEVENTH TIME

Edwin A. Foley of Chicago To Preach at Courthouse Tonight, Wednesday.

"What people need is less creed and more God." This is the gospel which rules the preaching of Edwin A. Foley of Chicago, hiking evangelist who is on his seventh visit to Marion. Foley is preaching tonight and Wednesday at 7:45 p. m., at the court house, taking for his subject, "Peace of Mind and How to Attain It."

Foley has memberships in Y. M. C. A.'s over the country and holds a card from the Marion Y where he makes his home while in the city. Collections are not taken at the Foley meetings. Voluntary contributions are always acceptable, but he does not go "begging" as he terms it.

Sixty-three years old, he has hitch-hiked 250,000 miles since he became an evangelist 11 years ago. Eleven years ago he was gassed by carbon monoxide and was declared dead by doctors for four days and 10 hours, he said this morning. Up to that time he had been an actor, but when his spirit was born anew and he came to life, he began his career of preaching the gospel around the United States. He is a strict vegetarian.

Gabreau's Errand

W Gabreau came down ... Conchita was washing ... after a late breakfast, ...ted on Molly and Divitt

... had paused before a case of old weapons, curious relics, some with corroded blades and gems to the hilts. Pierre came over to him, pointing out the beauties of an old scimitar.

Its thin steel curve was iridescent through the rust. Pierre's face reflected his enthusiasm over it—but evidently Gabreau was not interested.

But Gabreau knew what he had come to buy—the dirk with the smooth sharp blade and the handle that fitted snugly into the hand.

Pierre nodded, taking it from the case.

"Tell yo' mistress," he said, "I have another table like de lit' rosewood one she buy. I be please' she come and see him."

Gabreau took his parcel, flung down the price and went out.

"Now you be keerful, bebby!" Conchita crooned that night. "You have not eat', you have not slip. You have not de streng' to go with Umberto. You mus' let him do de work. You let him tek de chances."

Gabreau heard. When Conchita had gone down stairs he removed the dirk from its place behind the framed picture, and thrust it in his belt. From the armoire he took an old black satchel, placed a wrapped parcel within it and went down the stair.

He knew where Ledbetter lived—in the great bachelor apartments. In the days before Molly had turned the dive into the Parlors he had carried certain parcels to this house, parcels similar to the one he carried now. The bottles in this parcel were empty, but they would serve. The door man would no doubt remember him. People always remembered him.

Gabreau, arriving at the apartments, was told that Mr. Ledbetter was not in. "He will be in later" Gabreau said.

The door man did not dispute this. He appeared to divine the nature of Gabreau's errand, said to the elevator boy, "Take this up and put it in Mr. Ledbetter's apartment." But Gabreau would not surrender his satchel. The door man signaled him to go up with it.

The elevator boy knocked at Ledbetter's rooms, and presently unlocked the door, switched on the light, waiting while Gabreau went in and set a bottle on the table. "I've got tek one on de nex' flo'," said Gabreau his hand on the latch of the door. He himself turned off the light, closed the door. He came into the hall. "I walk down," he said. The elevator bell was ringing, and the boy left him.

Gabreau started up the stair, came down, walked back to Ledbetter's door. It opened at his touch. He released the latch again, went in and closed the door, turned on the soft light of a single sconce.

He had never seen such a place. Richness of walls and hangings, of lamps and paintings, divans and deep chairs. Gabreau stole across the rugs, opened the door upon a bedroom with canopied bed and mirrored bath beyond. Opposite the bed hung a painting. Venus reclining amid velvet. Gabreau could see the white body dimly, by the light from the adjoining room. Above it was a shaded globe. Gabreau pressed a button. The light came on.

Voluptuously beautiful, languorous dark eyes. . . . Eyes as dark as those of his Madonna. . . . Did this man think. . . . Had he bought this as he—Gabreau—had bought the Madonna? . . .

Gabreauu caught sight of himself in one of the mirrors. He twisted away from the livid reflections, starting sharply at a sound from the hall. Quickly he turned off the sconce and the light above the picture. He waited in the dark of the bedroom while the big clock on the mantel struck 10.

He had hoped that he would find Ledbetter at home and alone, that, seeing the satchel and thinking its contents a gift, Ledbetter would admit him and close the door. . . . It had been too much to hope for. Things didn't happen that way with him—Gabreau. But he could wait. He was used to waiting.

The sound died down the hall. Gabreau brought a chair into the recess behind the door, and sat down. Ledbetter had gone to some festivity; he would be late now. Perhaps he would not be home till 2 or 3 o'clock.

The thought made Gabreau nervous. At 11 he began to pace the rooms. Once he lay down on the bed, but even in the dark he could see the white outline of the recumbent Venus, feel her dark eyes. He went back to his chair behind the door.

Two o'clock came. Three. Gabreau sat very still until the dawn began to gray the windows, to sift into the room, till the street noises and the noises of the house told him that Ledbetter would not come. Fury greater than the fury that had brought him there possessed him. He began to fling open drawers of the table, the bureau. But drawers that opened so easily did not interest him, and many of these were empty. Others contained only apparel, belongings so suggestive of their owner that Gabreau's rage increased at sight of them. If he might find some locked drawer—

There was none. Apparently Ledbetter possessed no treasures. No treasures except the things that were on the walls about the rooms. Gabreau's eye fell on a Nubian dancing girl in black marble, a slim Tanagra vase. . . . These were precious, he knew, but he could not take them away. He might smash them in little bits to strew the floor. The vase sat on a desk in the shadows by the bed—an old escritoire with drawers. Gabreau went over to it.

The drawers were locked. Gabreau laughed, drew a ring of keys from his pocket. There was none that fitted the lock, but Gabreau's hands were strong. A key turned relentlessly in his grip. The lock broke. . . . Papers. Nothing but papers in any of the drawers. Gabreau, in his rage, threw the papers on the floor.

He started. Something among the papers had fallen heavily. A carved sandal wood box that looked like a jewel case. Men did not have jewel cases so far as Gabreau had observed, but he would believe any discrepancy of Ledbetter. The box also was locked. Gabreau with a smile dropped it into the satchel, put in the bottles with which he had come.

His eye fell on the painting at the bed's foot, the painting he seemed to see in the dark. He mounted a chair, drew the dirk from his belt. He would slash the thing to ribbons....Gabreau drew back his hand, a sound in his throat. The flesh was too beautiful. The dark eyes looked at him.

He pulled the chair away, took his satchel. Quickly he went through the outer door and down the stair.

Conchita was awake and waiting, for he was late. He made no reply to her eager murmur, but flung the bag into the closet, undressed and got into bed. It was not until later in the day, when she was alone, that Conchita got out the bag and opened it. It contained empty bottles and a carved wooden box that had been opened and snapped together again—jiggerly, as if in fury. There were only some papers in the box, small ivory-colored papers that she could not read.

"Dat, Gabie, Umberto," she grumbled, "like trust my Gabreau to make error' time."

To Be Continued.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TUESDAY. It was hot again this morning, hotter than ever. I took a look at myself when I had let Jubilee down, and I am all red where I hit the lake when I fell off the cliff. I took a belly-slammer. How come I fell there was a place where part of the cliff's edge had started to fall in the lake, and it had went down a little ways and stopped and made a kind of a little flat shelf, with the grass growing on it just the same as it had been before it slipped. I said to let's play we were all on a desert island, and one of us had to set down on the little shelf and watch out for a ship and wave our shirt at it so as to make it see us. Feeble said that was no job for a girl, and I asted her why not and she said girls didn't have no more shirt than a rabbit. So I said all right, I would be the first one to set on the shelf and watch and they could go back in the woods and when I saw a ship I would holler, "A said! A sail!" and they must come running. So I jumped down on the shelf and as soon as I landed on it it fell off the front of the cliff and the next thing I knew I was swimming to the beach and pulling myself out of the water. So then we couldn' play desert island any more, and then Ebbie said he had to go home to dinner and to feed his gimney pigs, and I asted him that old one, if he knew that if he lifted a gimney pig up by its tail his eyes would drop out. I thought everyone knew that but he didn't, and he said he didn't believe it, and if we'd go home with him he would prove it to us. So we all went with him, and he took a gimney pig out of its box and was feeling around for its tail, and then he turned it upside down and looked and he said, "It ain't got no tail. How can you tell by its tail when it ain't?" I said that's the joke on him quite a while and then he laughed and said, "That's a good one. I am going to try that on your father." I said to Ebbie, "Has your father got a tail?" Then everyone hollered and his mother said we were funny children and then she gave us some cookies and told us to run along. She knows how to make good cookies. We went and played ball on the vacant lot till Miss Parmer hollered that we would burn up if we didn't get in the shade. The Lost Bag of Tripe wasn't with us so we went around past his house and he has built a soda water stand. He wouldn't give us any. We didn't think he would.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Fears Dicky's Reactions.

MY hands were actually numb from the icy little fear which had swept me at the sudden thought that I might have used Dicky as a basis for one of the characters in the third act of my play. Not in physical aspect was there any likeness, for my "comedy relief" character was fat where Dicky is slender, with a toupee where Dickey's abundant brown hair shows no signs of becoming either thin or gray; and with a "caricature of a face" as contrasted to the features which I happen to know more than one of my husband's feminine admirers have called "like a Greek god," much to his disgust.

Nor were any of Dicky's more admirable qualities of brain and spirit mirrored in this character, who, while furthering the plot at divers times, had been introduced principally for the purpose of lightening what might otherwise have been too somber a piece of work.

I acquitted myself on one count. If I had realized that I was putting into the mouth of this character any lines which were even slightly reminiscent of Dicky's speeches or thought-processes, I should have brought myself up with a round turn and deleted the offending lines.

Without Realization

Once having plodded past the opening of my third act, however, I had been so caught up and swept along with it that I had dictated the entire thing to Lillian almost without the realization of what I was doing. But even as things long forgotten come crowding back into one's memory, I began to have hazy recollections of the lines I had put into this character's mouth, and of the attributes with which I had endowed him. I had given him the flippancy of attitude toward serious things which Dicky displays sometimes, but of which, to do him justice, he is not always guilty. I also had given this "comedy relief" character a constant roving eye for a pretty girl, which involved him in numberless difficulties. With a blush of shame, I realized that I had unconsciously exaggerated the artist's admiration which Dicky always gives to beauty in any form, feminine or otherwise, and which has caused me many mistaken heartaches in our life together.

I gripped by pencil in desperation and attacked the pages before me grimly. What had I written? I asked myself frantically. If I only had been able to evade Dicky's questioning concerning that unlucky expression "the chimpanzee with the croup," he might not have noticed the other lines which I had put into the mouth of the offending character.

He Would See

But, having wormed out of me the admission that my basis for the speech to which he had objected had been his own comment upon upon a photograph of Jack Bickett's, I knew that, as he himself had intimated, he would be on the lookout for any other speeches which might have been inspired by humorous comments of his own.

If he saw no further than that, I could bear it for I knew that he had not been angry because I had paraphrased a speech of his. Indeed I had sensed in him a certain humorous indulgence, holding a soupcon of gratified vanity at my plagiarism, but I had little hope of his overlooking the more flagrant offense of caricaturing some of his own attributes in my delineation of this comedy character. For there are few keener minds than Dicky's and unless he were blinded by the egotism which sometimes forbids us "seeing ourselves as others see us," he could not fail to see and be wounded, if not infuriated, by what I had subconsciously done. It had been a subconscious deed, I was as sure of that as I was of anything in the world, but how to convince Dicky of that? I drove through my copy feverishly, thankful for the magazine which in reality, or pretense, was absorbing Dicky's attention.

In the Lap of Fate

It was as I had feared. My comedy character was in some respects a caricature of my husband. I caught my breath in actual terror at the prospect of Dicky's almost sure reaction of my grievous offense against him.

For it was an unpardonable thing which I had done. I knew that as surely as I did the penalty. This offending character must be taken out of my play, even if the deletion involved a rupture with Philip Veritzen because of my uncompleted third act, and the blighting of all my hopes for success in dramatic writing. There was no use postponing the evil hour, however. There was a chance, a faint one, I feared, that Dicky might not recognize his own likeness in the character. If Fate were thus with me, I promised myself that I would so change the lines and business belonging to the role that no one could ever imagine it had any point of similarity to Dicky.

I changed the structure of one of my heroine's speeches, corrected the sense of a verb, put in a missing comma and laid down my pencil.

"Dicky," I said in a hushed little voice, "I've finished. Do you want to read the rest of this now?"

According to official estimates one in every nine motorcycles in use in the world is an American production.

Close Finishes Mark Opening Program of Night Racing

UNDERDOGS COME THROUGH TO WALLOP MONDAY FAVORITES

REDS AGAIN VICTIMS OF SHUTOUT AS CUBS CHALK UP 8-0 WIN

Open Season on for Big League Records; Tribe Takes One from Browns.

BY FAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

They've declared a sort of open season on baseball records in the two major leagues From now on, prospects are it will be a poor week that doesn't see a long standing mark shot full of holes

Three clubs stood on the threshold of new records today The Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds, with forty scoreless innings to their credit and discredit, respectively, appeared set to shatter all long distance marks in that specialty, while the champion Philadelphia Athletics were on the verge of bettering the all time mark for double victories

When they failed to score against the Chicago Cubs yesterday, the Reds ran their string of consecutive "goose eggs" to forty and at least tied one big league mark Only two other clubs in history have been blanked four straight days, the Boston Nationals in 1906 and the Cincinnati Reds of 1908.

What a Team

Losing yesterday, 8 to 0, the Reds collected only five scattered hits off Bob Smith

Pittsburgh, with four straight shutout victories to its credit, three of them over Cincinnati, had no opportunity to extend its string. Rain prevented the Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals from playing the only other game scheduled in the National league.

The Athletics approached the major league record for consecutive double wins when they stopped the second place Washington Senators, 3 to 2, and 6 to 5, squaring the series. The all time mark is five straight double killings, made by the New York Americans of 1906. Yesterday's twin victory was the fourth straight for the Mackmen.

It's Grove Again

Lefty Grove's airtight pitching in the pinches enabled the Mackian ace to hang up his twenty-second victory of the year in the first tilt

Sergeant George Connally, latest addition to Cleveland's mound staff, scored his initial triumph at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 3.

Earl Whitehill held the Chicago White Sox scoreless in all but one inning to give Detroit a 7 to 2 victory in the third game of their "cellar series."

Although they were outhit by a wide margin, the New York Yankees staggered through a 9 to 8 victory over Boston. Earl Webb of the Red Sox hit his forty-ninth and fiftieth two-baggers, driving in four runs.

DECISION TOO LATE

The Star regrets that it was unable to notify the softball fans of the city yesterday concerning the postponement of the Presbyterian-Christian Seniors game. Every effort was made to obtain a decision in time to prevent inconvenience for the fans who may have wished to see the game but no decision was forthcoming until after the paper was on the presses. The game is now scheduled to be played on August 17 at Lincoln park.

ENTRY BLANKS IN

Managers May Enter Teams Now in Local Softball Tourney.

Managers wishing to obtain entry blanks for the Central Ohio recreation baseball tournament may get them at any time from the sports editor of The Star. This tournament is open to any team that wishes to enter. Lineups of local teams do not necessarily have to be the same as those which have played in Marion league games this season.

The tourney will be played at Lincoln park on Sunday, Aug. 16, Sunday, Aug. 30 and Monday, Sept. 7 (Labor Day).

The team winning the tourney will receive $50 in cash and the second place team will receive $25.

A movement is under way in Oklahoma for sportsmen to donate $10,000 for a state quail hatchery unit.

LIGHTS WORK FINE; LULU WORTHY COPS FIRST RACE IN 2:10¼

Black Leaf Steps Mile in 2:08 1-2 in Classified Trot, but Loses to General Walker.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

BREATH-TAKING finishes and some all around brilliant racing marked the inaugural last night at the Fairground track of nocturnal horse racing in Marion A rather meager crowd of 1,200 persons dotted the grandstand for the opening program of what is billed as a five night meeting

As far as racing was concerned the first night's program was an unqualified success The lighting system worked excellent, the fields for the three events were evenly matched and some thrilling races were staged. The only thing lacking was grand stand patrons and the officials of the meet are expecting an increasingly large number of these as the meet continues

2:26 Trot Opens

The first event on the opening night's program was the 2 26 class trot with a purse of $300 Fourteen horses were lined up at the post for this event, the largest field that has started a race here in several meetings.

Silver Thread romped home in front of this event in straight heats, the only event of the evening in which all three heats were not necessary to decide the winner Miss Chester, a beautiful little mare of Art Ferguson's from Delaware offered about the only serious opposition to the winner despite the fact she finished third and fourth in the first two heats Had it not been for an unfortunate break within 25 yards of the finish Miss Chester would probably have held a length lead in the second heat to win. Miss Chester took second money by coming up fast on the stretch in the third heat to nose out Guy Arlon and Ethelco by a nose. The time for this race was the slowest of the three events, 2 13¼.

Peter at Law Falls Down

The odds were all on Peter At Law in the 17 class pace and during the first heat it looked like they were not misplaced. The favorite tore home ahead of the field in the first heat with plenty to spare. However,, Peter At Law did all of his racing in the first heat and never was very much in the running in the next two trips to the oval Lulu Worthy passed him on the backstretch of the first lap in the second heat and paced him for three quarters of the mile, beating him to the finish line by a nose General Brewer also staged a flashy finish in the second heat to come in third, a nose behind Peter At Law.

Commodore Burns threatened for three quarters of the last heat of this event to send the event into an extra heat as he grabbed the lead at the start and held it until the three quarter mile post. Lulu Worthy came up fast from this point on, demonstrating the fine horse that she really is, and beat the pace setter to the wire by a matter of inches. It was a great race.

One Bad Start

Although General Walker is credited with having won the final event of the opening program, the classified trot, it will take a long time to convince, Erskine, pilot of Black Leaf, that he was not robbed out of at least a chance to win General Walker and Black Leaf staged a thrilling duel for honors in the first two heats, the former taking the first and the latter the second, both by close margins

In the third and final heat, Steve Phillips, efficient starter though he is, apparently slipped up slightly and allowed the horses to get off to a bad start. Black Leaf, who should have had the pole position was far in arrears as the barrier was snapped There was nothing to it from then on for Black Leaf The distance was too great to make up General Walker romped home ahead of the field with only Peter Goldfinch in a challenging position Black Leaf crossed the wire seventh and out of the money. A protest was unavailing for Erskine and the race went to General Walker.

BERGHAMMER OUSTED AS BREWERS' PILOT

Frank O'Rourke Succeeds Him at Helm of Association Baseball Club.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug 4 Marty Berghammer, sixteenth in the succession of managers of Milwaukee's American Association club, today gave way for number seventeen—Frank O'Rourke, veteran American league infielder.

President Louis Nahin of the Brewers announced that O'Rourke reserve fielder for the St. Louis Browns had been obtained to replace Berghammer, who has failed to do as much as expected with his material

The acquisition of O'Rourke solves a double purpose. Milwaukee club officials felt they needed a new manager, and they were positive they needed a new third baseman The far corner has been the only weak spot in the Brewer infield

Berghammer is the second manager in President Thomas Jefferson Hickey's wheel to be replaced this season Several weeks ago John (Red) Carrigan resigned at Indianapolis, and was replaced by Emmett McCann Since McCann assumed charge of the Indians, they have steadily improved their position.

Since the league was started in 1902, Milwaukee has had more managers than any other club, except Toledo. O'Rourke is the seventeenth while nineteen have served for the Mud Hens

Indianapolis gained temporary possession of second place, by defeating Toledo, 6 to 3, in a night game. The contest was the only one played, the schedule and rain keeping other clubs out of action

TO PLAY AT DAYTON

The Erie Traffic club of the Commercial league will step into fast company Wednesday afternoon when it journeys to Dayton to meet the Schroyer Sporting Goods company team The Dayton team has been beaten but once in two years Shoemaker and Gunder will hurl for the Marion team The remainder of the lineup will be, Adams, 1b, Holliday, 2b; Sharrock, ss, Barr, 3b Cunningham lf, Robbins, cf, Wogan, rf, and Sheehe, c.

Short Ship Sidelights

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

Race track men are delicate souls at heart—witness the wash lines along the paddock Monday. Shirts of, we hate to say it, orchid and Nile green and one high "yaller waved in the breezes along side of more intimate apparrel and a gaudy array of socks hung to dry before one of the stables facing on Fairground street.

To the unitiated in night racing, the long white canvas reflectors around the outside edge of the track resembled a hotel washing—sheets, sheets and more sheets. Altogether, the entire spirit of the grounds Monday was that of a Chinese laundry running full steam ahead with soapsuds flying.

If there were any skeptical souls in the grand stand before the start of the races last night concerning the ability to see the races without difficulty, these same persons should be definitely convinced by now that their skepticism was misplaced. The lighting system worked to perfection. Possibly it is slightly more difficult to distinguish the particular horses on the back stretch and north turn but on the whole the incandescents were a big success. I'm for 'em.

Perhaps 1,200 persons wasn't bad for an opening night crowd but considering that the program of events was excellent and also that it marked the inauguration of night racing locally there should have been more paid admissions

Here's hoping the racing partisans will awaken to the fact by tonight that they are being presented with one of the best harness racing programs ever to be staged on a local track and turn out accordingly The meeting deserves wholehearted support from the racing fraternity

Another good evening of entertainment in store for the spectators tonight. Three events will again be run off, starting with an 18 class trot for a purse of $400. The second race will be a 26 pace non-winner affair for $300 and the final will be an 18-14 pace claiming for a $400 purse. Entries and drivers for these three events are listed elsewhere on this page.

CONFIDENT!

Here's a man who has $8,000 worth of confidence in the St. Louis Cardinals winning another National league pennant. He's Mayor Victor Miller of St Louis and, if his team comes through he's due to win $15,000. The mayor has a five to one bet the 1930 champions will repeat. Last year he wagered $500 to six to one

IMPOSSIBLE!

Harridge Says Umpires Are Really Good in American League.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug 4—President William Harridge of the American league, is well satisfied with the umpiring in his organization In fact, he believes, it is the "best in years."

Harridge has just returned from a tour through the eastern end of the circuit made with Umpire-In-Chief Tom Connolly, for the purpose of checking up on the work of the arbiters

"The American league now has the best umpiring I have seen in years," he said "The players themselves apparently appreciate that fact, for in all the games in the east, there was not a protest against any decision by an umpire

MORRAL IS VICTOR

Morral defeated Marseilles 5 7 Sunday afternoon in a Tri-county league game. The game was played at Morral.

RESULTS YESTERDAY

United Brethren 5, Forest Lawn 2; First Reformed 9, St Paul 0; Wesley M. E. 8, Christian No. 1, 5. Presbyterian-Christian Seniors game postponed until Aug 17.

YESTERDAY was certainly blue Monday for some of the teams in the No 2 Sunday school league Not so much for the tail end teams as for the leaders With a chance to temporarily gain some ground on the pace setters of the league all of the favorites were handed beatings by the underdogs so that as far as leadership of the league is concerned there was no change The three games played accomplished only one thing It removed all possibility of anyone winning the league championship except either the present leader or runner up Presbyterians are now ahead by a game with the Christian Seniors right behind

There's a Question

There is some question as to which of the three games yesterday was the biggest upset On paper none of them should have come out the way they did Wesley M E, the disappointment of the league this season, decided it had been cuffed around about long enough so it rose up in wrath and handed the Christian No 1 team a convincing 8-5 trouncing

United Brethren decided it was all due to get out of a seventh place tie with First Reformed when it staged a sixth inning rally to beat Forest Lawn but even that failed for the U B First Reformed had the same idea and as a result slammed two Lindsey brothers pitching for St Paul Lutheran, all over the lot to win 9-0 Incidentally this game marked the first time this season that Don Lindsey, St Paul's starting hurler, has been hammered from the knoll by the opposition It also assured St Paul that it will have to wait until next season before it can win any league pennant

Wesley M E weakened in the final two frames of the game with Christian No 1 or the tail-enders might have scored a shutout over the boys from the big stone church on Church street. The Christians trailed 8 0 going into the sixth but hopped onto Johnny Cook in the last two innings for five runs Cook was weakening fast but managed to get the third man out in the last inning before too much damage was done

Forest Lawn thought they had the game with the United Brethren all sewed up and in the bag when the last half of the sixth rolled around and they were in the lead 1 0 Perhaps that's why they lost Whatever the reason, the fact remains they did lose and the defeat may cost them a chance to finish in the first division this season Bob Peadon hurled for Forest Lawn and gets credit for the loss He was nicked in the fatal sixth for four hits which combined with one walk and a pair of errors allowed five markers to scamper across the plate "Fuzzy" Shields took it upon himself to get at least one run back in the seventh by clouting a four base wallop but one wasn't enough Consequently Forest Lawn lost

One Game Postponed

The First Presbyterian Christian Seniors game was postponed until August 17 The Christians did not have sufficient men to make up a team, three of their first-stringers being among the national guardsmen now at Camp Perry for their annual training trip

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Southern grown peaches at $1.45 a bushel was an offering by dealers today. The peaches are the first to be offered in bushel lots this season and dealers point to the unusual low price as an indication of low prices when the home grown fruit is placed on the marker later on. Some of the earlier varieties of home grown peaches are expected on the markets shortly.

Other fruit prices were steady today. Watermelons and cantaloupes were holding at the prices of yesterday. Prices ranging from 35 to 60 cents were being asked for watermelons while cantaloupes were selling at from 10 to 15 cents. Blackberries have practically disappeared from the markets. A few are to be found here and there, but the supply is very limited.

Sweet corn is becoming more plentiful and dealers were asking from 30 to 40 cents today. Potatoes were holding today at 30 cents a peck, the supply was large and the quality good. Other vegetables were plentiful with prices showing no change from yesterday

GRAIN PRICES HIT SLUMP

Liverpool Wheat Quotations React Against Values at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—Grain prices sagged early today. Influenced by Liverpool wheat quotations which were lower than expected. Liverpool reported severe pressure of wheat offerings from southeastern Europe and that Germany had further restricted imports. Opening unchanged to ¾ cents lower, wheat later showed an all around drop. Corn started ¼@⅜ off and afterward underwent an additional setback.

General selling that developed in the entire list of grains forced all future deliveries of wheat and of oats down to new low price records for the season. Much of the selling was of stop-loss character. September wheat fell quickly to within a fraction of the bottom-most price ever reached in Chicago either for spot or future deliveries. One of the reasons given for weakness of wheat at Liverpool was disturbed financial conditions in Danubian countries, another bearish factor mentioned was that the native wheat quota in Germany had been raised to 97 per cent commencing August 10, leaving only a negligible remainder of 3 per cent open for importations.

Corn and oats gave way as a result of sympathy with wheat, despite the fact that Chicago arrivals of corn today amounted to only 18 cars. September delivery led the downturns. Selling of wheat was started by a government finance agency. This selling however, was ascribed to hedging against purchasers of new grain.

Provisions reflected the drop in cereals, notwithstanding that hog values showed upturns.

USED CARS

When you buy a used car you should be sure the price is not put above the actual worth of the car, to allow the dealer to recoup an excessive trade-in allowance.

Under the Ford policy there is no incentive for this sort of practice—for the price of the New Ford car is so low and the value so high, that unreasonable trade-in concessions are hardly possible.

We allow the buyers of a Model A just what his old car is worth—and we offer that used car for sale on the same basis. Prices of our used cars are based on the service you will get from them. At present we are offering unusual bargains in unused transportation.

City Candidates Active as Primary Date Draws Near

Mayor Race in Spotlight as Campaign Progresses

Both Parties Have Contest at Head of Tickets; Three Ask Democratic Support While Four Republicans Want Nomination.

With but a week remaining before Marion voters go to the polls to select candidates who will represent the two major political parties in the municipal election next November, the final drive in the campaign to obtain votes started today.

Chief interest in next Tuesday's primary centers in the race for the nomination as mayor of Marion. Mayor L. Don Jones is facing opposition from William D. Drake and Andrew J. Sautter on the Democratic ticket. Four Republicans — Frank Paschall, William C. Phillians, R. E. Prettyman and Bert J. Shelton—are seeking the nomination for their party.

Four Other Races

Four other races hold a smaller position in the pre-primary limelight. Four Democrats are seeking the three berths as councilman-at-large. They are G. R. Henney, Morris W. Kline, Frank H. McDaniels and George B. Orr.

Mina Doughty is opposing J. L. Landes in his quest for renomination on the Republican ticket as city auditor. R. E. Grubaugh, who filed as a Democratic candidate, has withdrawn, leaving the primary field clear for Harry G. Baker. Grubaugh's name, however, will appear on the ballot.

The remaining two contests are on the Democratic ticket with five men seeking two nominations as ward councilmen. William Fabian, Harry Hoch and T. J. Mead are seeking the second ward nomination while Roy S. Jennings and J. M. Miller are after the nomination from the sixth ward.

Two vacancies will appear on the tickets, one for each party. The Democrats have offered no candidate for solicitor and the Republican ballot will not have a candidate for councilman from fifth ward.

Expect Light Vote

A comparatively light vote is anticipated by local political prophets in spite of the large number of candidates seeking the post as mayor. This follows the general trend of the last several years. However, the number of absent voters casting ballots this year shows an increase over the same period last year. Fifty-three absent ballots have been cast compared with 31 a year ago.

The board of elections is making final plans for the primary. Boxes of supplies are being prepared and will be distributed to the presiding judges at a meeting called for Monday at 8 p. m. Instructions will be given at that time. The polls will open at 6:30 a. m. and will close at 6:30 p. m.

Five changes in voting places were announced today by the board. First ward A will vote in the women's waiting room at the courthouse instead of the surveyor's office. Second ward C which voted at the Silver Street Coal Co. office has been moved two doors west of the Miller store building at 547 Silver street.

Moved to Armory

Fourth ward C will vote at the armory instead of at the J. W. Thompson residence at 405 west Church street. Fourth ward E has been moved from the N. R. Hildreth garage at 369 west Columbia street to the James Navin home at 370 Blaine avenue. Indiana avenue school building will be the voting place for the Sixth ward G instead of L. A. Call's garage at 1067 east Center street.

Four voters who will not be in Marion primary day cast absent voters' ballots yesterday. They are W. G. Slack of 448 Summit street, Judge Charles L. Justice of 139 Merchant avenue, Vera I. Slack and William B. Slack of 448 Summit street. The deadline for casting absent voters' ballots is midnight Saturday.
